The Battle of Bull Run.

Every intelligent reader knows how unreliable is contemporary history of exciting events. An accepted history of the late rebellion and its stirring incidents is by no means free from errors of the most glaring and important character, which will only be eliminated with the lapse of time, more careful comparison of notes, [illegible] stirring which free from the excitement and prejudice natural to the hour of intense participation in the narrated events. All the world nearly has accepted as absolutely true the proposition that at the first battle of Bull Run, in July, 1861, the Union Army was put to rout by rebel assaults, and that thus we lost a triumph which, if achieved, in all probability would have brought the war to an end then and there. Jeff. Davis on the night after the battle telegraphed to Richmond that his army had won a great victory, and put the Federal army to rout. Northern press correspondents who fled the field after the fight was over, took the same view, and Horace Greeley, in his American Conflict, very naturally accepted the story as absolutely true, and adopted it in a work intended to be a permanent historical record of the war.

THE BATTLE A DRAWN ONE—THE PANIC [illegible].

Nevertheless, there is now abundant evidence derived from rebel officers engaged on that fight, fully confirming assertions made at the time by some of Gen. McDowell's subordinates, to the effect that so long as the battle continued, it was as much of a success as could be expected for a raw army attacking a strongly fortified position, and that the Union forces were not beaten back and put to rout by the enemy. The words italicised contain the special point of error which it is my present purpose to controvert. That a panic did occur late in the day of the engagement is undoubtedly true. It is also true that except for this unaccountable panic, Gen. McDowell would, in all probability, have won a victory of the most signal and important character; but that panic and the flight which it involved were the result of a grand mistake, utterly without reasonable cause, and not the result of any demonstration made, or attempted to be made by the enemy. It was just such a panic as we have seen many a time at a fire, caused by the rushing of a few men from some supposed danger, whose terrors are increased a thousand fold by the very fact that it is neither seen nor understood—thus leaving imagination free to fancy the most appalling disaster.

Several rebel officers who have been in Washington recently express their astonishment that we should have ever given the rebel army the credit of putting McDowell to rout at Manassas or Bull Run. At the very worst they declare the battle was a drawn one; that our troops pressed the rebels sorely, notwithstanding their advantage of position; and that if another onset had been made on our part they must have given way and been lost. They expected this final attack, made the best disposition at their control to meet it, and were astonished that it was not made. True, our right was repulsed at about 3 P. M., in consequence of fresh rebel troops coming up in time to be hurled upon the Union force which had become quite exhausted by their hitherto successful efforts. But there was no panic then, and no rout. The enemy saw nothing to lead them to suppose that the struggle was over. The very last they saw of our men, even when repulsed, led them to anticipate another attack, for the consequences of which the enemy were exceedingly anxious. A "rout" implies a disorderly flight of a beaten army under the blows of its opponents. There was nothing of the sort on this occasion. The panic and stampede arose subsequently, after the point of collision had been passed, and when no real danger of any sort was menacing us. It was utterly causeless and senseless. It began with some teamsters, who became entangled and confused in the road in the rear of the battle field; and it extended and became quite general for the very reason that no cause for it could be seen. Each man took it for granted, after the panic began, that there was a cause for it, and presumed that the enemy were pursuing in overwhelming numbers.

THE SUPPOSED ROUT AN AFTER-THOUGHT.

All this was erroneous. No enemy was pursuing—none had stricken any blow producing this unfortunate result. Jeff. Davis's assertion on that evening that our army was routed by the Confederates had no basis other than the check and orderly falling back of our right at about 3 P. M. Neither he nor any of his officers knew anything of our panic, or suspected it. So far from it, on the succeeding morning a strong reconnoissance was made by the enemy in his front, during the terrible rain-storm then raging, to ascertain the Federal position. A rebel staff officer who took part in this reconnoissance and whose testimony is entirely credible, states that nobody then dreamed that the Union army had retired from the field or been "routed." On the contrary, they fully supposed McDowell's forces to be in their near vicinity, and made their reconnoissance for the purpose of discovering where he was, lest he should be engaged in making some new and more formidable demonstration, under cover of the storm. So far from knowing that the Union army had fled, the rebel reconnoissance was conducted on the succeeding morning with the utmost caution, and finally abandoned for fear that the reconnoitering party would fall into an ambuscade. It was not until Monday night (the battle was fought on Sunday) that rebel scouts came in with information of the senseless panic which robbed the Union army of its triumph when victory was just within its grasp, and could not have been wrested from them by any real danger.

These interesting facts are valuable, not only as leaves of history, but also because they relieve Gen. McDowell's plan of battle from the suspicion of inadequacy growing out of final failure. No man could guard against panic when it has once seized upon a mass of men, and when the supposed danger is imaginable and therefore not visible, understood and capable of being met and overcome. All this was apparent to Mr. Lincoln when he heard Gen. McDowell's explanations, and accounts for his unwavering confidence in that officer, notwithstanding his misfortunes in being the leader of an unsuccessful campaign. I suggest that the time has come when the General may, with advantage to himself and to truth, contribute for publication his own version of the Bull Run battle, in order that a comparison of statements may correct prevailing errors and furnish history with the elements of accuracy.

THE ARREST OF MOSBY.—The Washington Republican, in alluding to this notorious rebel raider and plunderer, says:

Mosby, the guerilla chief, a few days since had the audacity, as has already been announced to our readers, to make his appearance in the city of Alexandria. He was soon recognized by his friends, and especially by his foes, many of whom had been his victims. Demonstrations for and against him were about being made by both parties, when General Wells, Provost Marshal General of the Defenses south of Washington, ordered his arrest. Upon being brought before Gen. Wells, Mosby desired to know the cause of his arrest, and after repeated inquiries he was informed that there were between twenty and thirty Union men in Alexandria who had entered complaints against him as a highway robber, plunderer and common horse thief, and that those thereupon learning that he (Mosby) was at large in Alexandria, were talking strongly of assaulting him or shooting him at sight. General Wells informed Mosby that it was his purpose to prevent any such violation of the peace, but he found there was also a class of people in Alexandria who sympathized with him (Mosby's) conduct as a guerilla, and were making preparations for public demonstrations in his honor. The General notified Mosby that such [illegible] would under no circumstances be permitted. Mosby put in the plea that he had taken the oath of allegiance under the amnesty proclamation, and supposed, therefore, that he had the right to come to Alexandria, or go where he pleased. General Wells informed him that the amnesty proclamation was intended to cover men who had been engaged in honorable warfare, and not [illegible] whose whole military life for the past four years was a violation of the laws of war. The [illegible] being clear that by order of Gen. Halleck Mosby had been permitted to take the oath of allegiance (in our judgment an outrageous perversion of the intentions of the President in issuing the amnesty proclamation), the Secretary of War ordered his release from arrest, with the distinct understanding that he return to his home and never come again within the limits of this Department without permission, upon the penalty of being arrested and confined in the Old Capitol. Mosby accepted the release upon the terms named, and departed from the custody of General Wells.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

THURSDAY MORNING, SEPT. 28, 1865.

Canada

It is plainly evident that agencies are now at work in Canada which will eventually bring about a very material change in the relations which exist between the Provinces and the mother country. Practical independence was tendered all British North America, not long ago, by the home government, but the Provinces declined to assume the responsibility of becoming a sovereign power and undertaking to direct their own governmental affairs. Nor are they willing to remain in the condition in which they now are. They mourn dolefully over the decline of their prosperity, and urge that something must be done to arrest the decay of trade and to revive industry again. They are dissatisfied with England, and ask what is the use of being dependents to the Crown when the Crown is no longer disposed to treat them with fostering care. If annexation to the United States is but named, the Canadians at once become extremely indignant and declare they are "loyal" and do not want to come with us. The denunciatory manner in which they protest against being dragged into a political alliance with the United States is very interesting to us, especially as we do not want their company. But since they complain about their present situation and desire to change it for the better; upbraid and abuse the mother country for not taking better care of them, when they are told they must care for themselves, declare they are going to make some great alteration in their political system, when they will neither accept their independence nor join with us, when they do and say all sorts of contradictory things like those we may inquire what they do mean. What is it they want? What do they in reality propose? In short, they desire to live on very intimate terms with the United States, enjoy the benefits of free trade with us, and possess all the advantages which our own States have in common with each other, and be subject to none of the burdens which are imposed upon the several members of our Federal Union.

Had the Canadians dealt fairly with us, the reciprocity treaty might never have been rescinded. The attempt to seize steamers for the rebels on Lake Ontario, and to liberate the rebel prisoners on Johnson's Island, and the conception and execution of the St. Albans robbery and murder, did not turn out advantageously for the Provinces after all. They have realized little advantage by their faithless course toward us and by their approval of the violent acts of our enemies. They see at last that it would have been better for them to have adhered to the fortunes of their old neighbors and friends.

The reciprocity treaty which was of so great advantage to the Canadas, was a detriment to us and will hardly be renewed. It is of little consequence to the people of the United States what changes in their polity the Provinces may see fit to make. They would not come with us in the revolution, and we do not believe that our people want them now. Hence the "Canucks" had as well remember when they are waxing so very wroth at the prospect of annexation, that they are entirely wasting their angry emotions, since our people are more than willing for them to stay where they are.

The Fenians in Ireland.—From tenor of foreign dispatches it is manifest that the Fenians are just now regarded with considerable interest, and even with alarm by the British authorities. Some time ago John Bull—as Horace in one of his satires says of Jupiter—inflated his cheeks at the ridiculous idea, and cried "Poop, poop!" when told of the organization of large bodies of men whose purpose it is to set Ireland free. But now, Mr. Bull, though not greatly frightened, is evidently a little disconcerted about the business. All the parade that is making in Ireland clearly means something, and he is not slow to divine that resistance to British domination is contemplated by the sons of Erin.

Should Ireland strike for her ancient independence, her only hope for success would lie in the aid she could receive from abroad. The population of the island, it is true, is about 6,000,000, or almost the number lately engaged in our Southern rebellion, but there cannot be the slightest comparison between the natural resources and productive energies of Ireland and our Southern States. Unaided, Ireland could not maintain an army of 100,000 men for a year. The duration of her resistance to the power of England would be measured by the length of time she could keep even a much smaller military force than this from actual starvation; and judging from the overtasked capabilities of the island this would not be long. The fortresses of Ireland are all in the hands of British troops, and could only be taken by long and exhaustive sieges. England has ships and Ireland could have none, except those her friends would give her. There can hardly be the slightest doubt, however, that on the news of the first insurrection in Ireland, our Government would declare the insurgents entitled to belligerent rights, and that our enterprising citizens, in imitation of the Nassau and Wilmington business, yet fresh in memory, would send aid and relief in the shape of goods, arms, and iron-clads to the Irish. Why shouldn't we? England just now set us the example, and as one good turn always richly deserves another, we are quite anxious to repay in kind. This would be an example of retribution worth practicing and enjoying.

Forty or fifty good iron vessels built in this country, could be suffered to fall into the hands of those who would use them, just as the Alabama, Shenandoah and other ships, were given by the English to the rebels, and these manned by the unemployed seamen, who learned service under Porter, Dahlgren and old Viking Farragut, would give Brittania a taste of her style of neutrality right upon her own coasts. Whatever the result might be for Ireland, England would be apt to try to beg off from the dilemma by interceding with us to revoke the grant of belligerent rights, and by paying our claims to the uttermost farthing for damages done by Anglo rebel armors during and since the rebellion in the United States.

To all Persons doing a Banking Business.

U. S. Assessor—Office of Internal Revenue, }
For the State of Oregon,
Portland, Oregon, Sept. 26, 1865.

Editor Oregonian:

I wish to call the attention of merchants and others dealing in exchanges, bullion, stocks, receiving deposits, &c., &c., to see. 79, Article 1, Internal Revenue law passed 3d March, 1865. As I have suspicion that several parties are violating the same, and probably ignorantly, therefore, it will be well for them to attend to the matter at once, and save themselves the penalty attached to such violations. Persons not feeling satisfied whether they are violating the law or not, will find me at my office during business hours, ready and willing to give them the desired information, on their stating correctly the kind of business they are doing. Also all persons having taken a license as brokers, or finding, from their business, that they are subject to a banker's license, will have an opportunity to amend the same by applying to the Assessor or his Assistant. The following is the Section referred to, viz:

Bankers using or employing a capital not exceeding the sum of fifty thousand dollars shall pay one hundred dollars for each license, when using or employing a capital exceeding fifty thousand dollars, for every additional thousand dollars in excess of fifty thousand dollars, two dollars. Every person, firm or company, and every incorporated or other bank, having a place of business where credits are opened by the deposit or collection of money or currency, subject to be paid or remitted upon draft, check, or order, or where money is advanced or loaned on stocks, bonds, bullion, bills of exchange, or promissory notes, or where stocks, bonds, bullion, bills of exchange, or promissory notes are received for discount or sale, shall be regarded a banker under this act.

Bankers and brokers are also liable to the duties as provided in Sec. 99 and 110, and must make monthly returns of the same and pay the duties as therein provided. Persons having taken a banker's license, will not be subject to a broker's license for doing a broker's business.

Most respectfully, THOS. FRAZAR,
U. S. Assessor, Oregon.

The annual meeting of the British association for advancement of science commenced at Birmingham.

The Paris Moniteur is highly satisfied with the manner in which the people and fleets of England and France are harmonious in their mutual interests, and with the unity of their principles. In matters of public law they report they vied with one another in disinterestedness in efforts to insure independence of the Ottoman Empire, and when France had freed Italy England determined to endeavor to retain the Colonial Islands and consent to restore them to their original nationality.

The London Times of the 7th, editorially opposes the project of saddling England with heavy obligations on account of the inter continental intercourse from Quebec to Halifax and argues against the expediency of the undertaking.

Paris, Sept. 8.—It is asserted that the French Government [illegible] to Russia in reference to the murder of [illegible] by Count Eberling. It dwells on the fact that France extends protection to all her subjects.

Accounts from Constantinople place the destruction of buildings by the [illegible] fire at 2,800 and 22,000 people were rendered homeless.

Mrs. Thomas Moore, widow of Moore the poet, is dead.

The Cork Reporter announces that the Government has ordered a number of gun boats and two men of war to be stationed off Bantry Bay and other stations of the west coast of Ireland.

Cyrus W. Field is a passenger by the Australasian. He was present at one of the meetings of the British Association and made a brief speech expressive of renewed faith in the accomplishment of the Atlantic cable enterprize next year.

California News—Daring and Successful Feat on the Tight Rope.

San Francisco, Sept. 27.—The Overland Line resumed work at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

About 5,000 persons were present at the Cliff House to-day to witness Mr. James Cooke perform the feat of walking a tight rope from the Cliff House to Seal Rock. At 12 15 P.M. precisely, Cooke stepped upon the rope at the Cliff House and started out on his perilous journey, the crowd standing in awe-struck silence, not a word being spoken, so intense was the interest of all beholders. He progressed finely until within 100 feet of the rock, when a guy, which had been poorly secured, gave way, and the strong breeze which had sprung up causing the rope to swing violently from side to side, he slipped, lost his footing, and dropped astride the rope, his balancing pole falling into the sea. He then drew himself by his hands along the rope to the rock, where the pole was handed him by the boatman who had picked it up as it arose to the surface, and after about five minutes passed in resting himself, the exertion having completely unnerved him, he stepped out fresh once more upon the rope and walked steadily towards the shore; near the center the rope swayed badly, but he appeared to have made up his mind that a failure this time was not on the bills, and without a pause or moment's hesitation he continued on his walk to the end. As he neared the shore the excitement became intense and it required the active efforts of a number of policemen to clear the landing so that he could step upon the solid ground. The crowd which covered the whole face of the Cliff House balcony and roof, and the whole beach below, for the first time broke silence, and one tremendous hurrah! burst from the lips of thousands. In an instant the crowd, men, women and children, rushed towards him to shake him by the hand, and it was some minutes before he could reach the Cliff House to resume his usual apparel.

The most remarkable feature of this affair is, that Cooke never stepped upon the rope until within the last two weeks, though a circus performer by profession, and as he could not swim at all, it is evident a fall would probably have been fatal to him. The crowd was so pleased with his success that hundreds offered to subscribe for a testimonial to him, and he was surrounded by a vast throng who eagerly importuned him to delay his departure and give another exhibition of his wonderful skill and daring.

The new screw steamer Huntsville, which left New York for San Francisco on the 12th ult., when four days out met with an accident which caused her to return to New York. She was to have sailed again for San Francisco on the 5th of September.

Mrs. [illegible] lately arrived in this city from the East, hoping to raise means to establish in New York a home for the orphan daughters of the Union soldiers.

The purpose is to raise seventy-five thousand dollars with which to build and fund a home in which the orphan girls will receive a thorough physical and moral education, and be fitted for the duties of life.

The work on the new overland telegraph line [illegible] the construction of the [illegible] to Stockton, and from thence to Placerville, under the contract let to Chas. A. Sears. It is expected the portion will be finished in three or four months.

A Woolen Factory in Wasco County.—In point of manufactures and grow[illegible] development, the eastern portion of Oregon is considered to be greatly behind the western portion, but we understand, with satisfaction, from the [illegible] lately in the city, that [illegible] Wasco County at not at no very distant day, will be enabled to rectify the [illegible] for advantages [illegible] to the establishing of manufactures. [illegible] We [illegible] agree that we cannot [illegible] grading commonwealth [illegible] establishments of the [illegible] to produce a class of manufactures [illegible] capitalists and workmen [illegible] heartily rejoice [illegible] means of gaining [illegible] due to Oregon. [illegible] as well as produce. [illegible] the most enlightened [illegible] prosperity of the country [illegible] the country can sustain [illegible] useful, and it has [illegible] prosperity of Great Britain [illegible] the reasons for the prosperity [illegible] she exports no raw material [illegible] wealth of Wasco county [illegible] the years of her mineral resources [illegible] the pastoral advantages of the hills, ravines and [illegible] That the last clips of wool [illegible] has not been of a very excellent standard [illegible] city such cannot be improved [illegible] places that her flocks [illegible] their husbandmen may be benefited. As showing conclusively that the demand [illegible] the product of wool in the United States [illegible] it has been ascertained that the consumption [illegible] 100,000,000 to 180,000,000 lbs., while the present [illegible] of wool slightly exceeds [illegible] The manufacture in the United States of worsted goods, consisting [illegible] wool and cotton warp, mousline delaine, bareges, [illegible] for ladies' dresses [illegible] New England. The product [illegible] in 1864, according to advance sheets [illegible] forthcoming work on Domestic Manufactures, was [illegible] yards; the annual value of the products [illegible] annual cost of labor, $[illegible] female hands [illegible] 1,277; male hands employed, 1,101; sets of [illegible] cost of all raw material used, $2,412,775 [illegible] used, 1,[illegible],000 lbs. wool used [illegible] capital [illegible] $3,[illegible],000. Of Woolen factories in the United States, there are 1,704 in operation; [illegible] which has increased rapidly of late, 750 reported [illegible] lbs of wool used by them in 1864. It [illegible] that Mr. Gray has not left the place at all [illegible] disturbance at the East Portland hotel [illegible] and taking a room (No. 12) at the What Cheer [illegible] at a seasonable hour, and did not leave [illegible] until the next morning, after the hour of the [illegible] was wrongly accused. At the examination [illegible] it was shown that the defendant Lambert [illegible] Mr. Rives' room about two o'clock [illegible] morning, and he stated to Mr. R. that [illegible] Gray was about the place and would endeavor [illegible] that he had been to the city to have him arrested [illegible] could not get the officers to do anything [illegible] for costs. After that hour the [illegible] house again went to sleep, but were [illegible] five o'clock by the crackling of the [illegible] that time the evidence given in the case [illegible] that Mr. Gray was in bed at the What [illegible] were two other gentlemen in bed in the [illegible] with him.

[illegible] Trial.—Mr. and Mrs. Lambert, on examination before Justice Anderson yesterday, were held for the next term of the Circuit Court. They are [illegible] in the complaint as being bailees for the sum of [illegible] to their care by Thomas E. Rives, while [illegible] was stopping with them at the East Portland [illegible] they fail to produce, or give satisfactory explanation [illegible] Lambert's bail was fixed at $3,000, that of [illegible] at $1,000. We will not attempt to give [illegible] of the case. The Justices' office was crowded [illegible] during the progress of the examination. The defendant was proven an [illegible]

[illegible] Stephens. Stephens made a promissory note [illegible] payable in gold and silver, previous to the passage of the [illegible] act. Stephens tendered to [illegible] in treasury notes; the Court below held [illegible] was no tender. Judgment was reversed, the [illegible] tender good.

[illegible]—Among the twenty eight families that [illegible] this city, during the past two days from [illegible] may be found a few at least of the [illegible] Ashley. The [illegible] connection [illegible] "C. S. Another [illegible] and was very emphatically of the [illegible] the youngest boy in the train would yet live [illegible] "[illegible] abolitionist" or two in future [illegible] from some of this character the immigration [illegible] respectable citizens.

[illegible] Success.—Our young friend Gilman—more [illegible] known as "Sam"—conducted the regular [illegible] yesterday with becoming propriety. It [illegible] first real effort at "crying aloud" amidst the [illegible] and he was eminently successful. Encouraged by [illegible] of the first experiment we expect to hear of [illegible] in that line.

Governor Denny goes [illegible] to do [illegible] for his constituents. The [illegible] aid from the general government, for the [illegible] of a better road to the Sound from the Columbia river, is one of the measures likely to be introduced [illegible] He will take stage to California from this [illegible]

Fast Freight Line.—Four or five months ago some [illegible] of the [illegible] to put it through had undertaken to establish a [illegible] fast freight line [illegible] the city with facilities for carrying [illegible] with freight. The [illegible] last Thursday night [illegible] with [illegible] and what is [illegible] at Boise City [illegible] the same time [illegible] night, [illegible] with the freight [illegible] passengers [illegible] in fact [illegible] All the teams are all suited [illegible] on the Willamette [illegible] to have houses on the [illegible] it is the determination [illegible] having control of the line [illegible] with all the [illegible] regularity of the [illegible] for which the line have made all their [illegible] As a financial [illegible] but as an improved mode of obtaining freight [illegible] is of the highest importance in a business point of view. There is a vast amount of valuable merchandise used in the [illegible] which would not be [illegible] the whole cost of the freight [illegible] hundred pounds [illegible] the cost of the freight is reduced [illegible] it is one of the general [illegible] that the line [illegible] supplies [illegible] everything that demand [illegible] these latter [illegible] except for [illegible] small parcels. The [illegible] to bring [illegible] Boise City [illegible] and [illegible] Idaho City [illegible] Alturas and Owyhee counties. We look upon this enterprise [illegible] and we [illegible] of the proprietors [illegible] permanent [illegible] which they [illegible] —Idaho Statesman.

The Women from the East.—It will not be a great while until three hundred Massachusetts women will arrive at Seattle, Washington Territory. The people over there are making preparations to receive them and furnish them homes. But they fear they will be able to provide only temporarily for many of those who are expected. The country over there is sparsely populated and some difficulty may be experienced in finding accommodations for all. We [illegible] that the [illegible] Arrangements at Seattle have written to parties in this city asking that steps be taken to provide accommodations here for [illegible] of these ladies. We are quite sure that that number could find good situations and remunerative employment in families in this place. Will not the people here respond to this call in behalf of those who want homes and are willing to work? Full arrangements could be made at a meeting called for the purpose. A small fund ought to be raised to provide for the contingencies of travel between the Sound and this place. We hope to see the matter receive attention.

"The Printer and the Laws."—The Statesman of this week has another unjust and ill-natured article under the above title. Some weeks ago we took occasion to make a clear statement of the whole matter of the public printing, so no one who wants to know how it stands can have any excuse for being ignorant about it. The Statesman, though it was then satisfied, now shows its chronic disposition to snarl and growl by reiterating what we before so conclusively disproved. We clearly see what that paper has in view in making those attacks, and heartily hope it may succeed in its very unselfish (?) object. But we fear we shall soon be compelled to put it down as a thing capable of more little meannesses than have ever characterized the vile Copperhead sheets which we so heartily despise.

The Meanest Kind of Stealing.—Governor Fiske, of the Tennessee Department, reports as follows:

"I will give you an instance of many that have come to my knowledge. Three of the first families of Tennessee, following the fortunes of the Confederacy, had taken up their residence in Alabama, far from the scenes of strife, waiting the attainment of their 'rights in the territories.' They dwelt together as one family. They all had money—one of them was formerly a banker, and had carried with him southward large deposits of coin. When the end came, and we commenced feeding instead of fighting our misguided brethren, the three heads of this joint family learned of the ration movement and hurried[illegible] posted off to the nearest military station for their share, and each one drew for the whole number in the three families. Thus for five days seventeen persons received 255 rations instead of 85. I have reported this case to the proper authorities for investigation, and hope the rascals will be punished."

Willamette University.—We learn that Dr. Wythe has been chosen President of the Willamette University. The Doctor has been pastor of the Powell Street M. E. Church of San Francisco for the last two years. He formerly resided in Philadelphia. He is known as an accomplished scholar. It is stated that he will reach here from San Francisco in a few days.

Polk County Statistics.—Legal voters, 943; valuation of property $1,[illegible],179; military tax, $974; poll tax, $704; property tax, $5,682 48; total State tax, $7,360 48.

American Belles.—America is justly proud of her beautiful ladies, but how many mar their beauty, and lose their health and youth, become prematurely old in appearance, by neglecting to take proper care of their teeth. There can be no excuse for this, as Sozodont, pronounced by all worthy a place between the sweetest lips, can now be had in all civilized countries.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

HAS BEEN USED FOR NEARLY

HALF A CENTURY,

WITH THE MOST ASTONISHING SUCCESS IN CURING

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Croup, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Difficulty of Breathing, Asthma, and every affection of the

THROAT, LUNGS, AND CHEST

INCLUDING EVEN

CONSUMPTION.

There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms—a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known, so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.

In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve, and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of

has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise us of the fact under their own signatures. We have space only for the names of a few of these:—

S. B. Finley, M. D., San Francisco, Cal.
E. Borden, M. D., Exeter, Me.
Alexander Hatch, M. D., China, Me.
R. Fellows, M. D., Hill, N. H.
W. H. Webb, M. D., Cape Vincent, N. Y.
W. B. Lynch, M. D., Aub[illegible], N. Y.
Abraham Skillman, M. D., Boundbrook, N. J.
H. D. Martin, M. D., Mansfield, Pa.

The proprietors have letters from all classes of our fellow citizens, from the halls of Congress to the humblest cottage, and even from beyond the seas; for the fame and virtue of Wistar's Balsam have extended to the uttermost bounds of the earth, without any attempt on our part to introduce it beyond the limits of our own country.

TO CALIFORNIANS AND OREGONIANS.

After October 1, 1863, all genuine WISTAR'S BALSAM of WILD CHERRY for the Pacific Coast will be enclosed in a new wrapper which will bear the printed names of both Seth W. Fowle & Co., Boston, Mass., and John D. Park, Cincinnati, Ohio, as well as fac-simile of the signatures of "I. Butts," "Sanford & Park," and "H. Wistar, M. D."

The Freedman's Village on the Lee Estate at Arlington

Correspondence of the New York [illegible]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Th[illegible] attractive resorts in the vicinity [illegible] and how that have [illegible] Arlington, the home but a few years ago [illegible] the rebel army. [illegible] the first guns for the [illegible] Capital were planted [illegible] under the shadow [illegible] stately [illegible] crowned with its gr[illegible] the stout arms of our brave [illegible] carved [illegible] heights have been [illegible] camps and bristled with cannon, whose mouths still [illegible] upon us as we climb the [illegible] for four years this [illegible] mansion, with its [illegible] pillars peeping from the foliage that surrounds [illegible] has echoed with the tramp [illegible] ing ward and watch over the [illegible] of Washington which the traitor owner [illegible] his departure [illegible] from their ancestral niche.

THE ARLINGTON ESTATE—THE FREEDMEN [illegible]

The Arlington estate [illegible] many memories of the past [illegible] some eleven hundred acres stretching [illegible] over the heights [illegible] under cultivation, being worked by the freedmen gathered on the estate. [illegible] along the road winding round the [illegible] towards the river, signboards inscribed [illegible] ment Farm. Do not Trespass," tell the story of the change of ownership consequent upon [illegible] infidelity to the nation that educated him. [illegible] blacks are supplied with teams and all necessary agricultural implements, and may be seen at [illegible] hours of the day driving their carts, [illegible] fields or gathering their crops, apparently as happy and contented as they could be were they owners in fee simple of the broad acres which they till. That part of the farm devoted to the growing of vegetables lying directly on the [illegible] presents unmistakable evidence of careful and skillful cultivation; and it is said that the products of the gardens, which are sold in the markets of Georgetown and Washington, realize every year some fourteen thousand or fifteen thousand dollars. This does not look as if the negroes were indifferent agriculturalists.

THE SOLDIERS' CEMETERY.

The farms, however, with their dusky laborers and affluent crops, are not the only objects of interest on this estate. Lying some distance south of the mansion is an immense inclosure set apart as a cemetery for the interment of soldiers killed in battle or dying in the hospitals in this vicinity. This cemetery embraces one or two hundred acres and already contains nearly seven thousand graves. These graves are arranged with military precision in long symmetrical rows, each with a headboard painted white and the inscription in black letters. Many of these graves are neatly sodded, and all are carefully kept by men employed for the purpose by the War Department. There are a few rebel soldiers lying among the loyal dead, and in a space especially appropriated for the purpose large numbers of blacks are buried. It would seem that if these last were worthy, when living, to share the companionship of the white soldier at whose side they fought for liberty and the Union, they ought not to be considered unworthy to sleep with them, when dead, on common ground; but we are not yet past the age of pig-headed prejudice, nor of official tolerance of the spirit which makes color a badge of shame or honor.

THE FREEDMEN'S VILLAGE.

But of all the objects of interest which attract popular attention to this estate, the most interesting in all respects, is Freedmen's Village, situated on what is known, for the sake of distinction, as Greer's Hights. This village consists of perhaps one hundred dwellings, all arranged upon a single street, which pursues a tortuous path along the summit of the Hights. The houses are all painted white, and appear to be neatly kept, presenting an appearance of cleanliness which sometimes is not found in the best city neighborhoods. They are occupied, for the most part, by the families of the freedmen employed on the Government farms, but there are in the community many mechanics who carry on their various avocations profitably to themselves and to the benefit of their neighbors. We noticed several shoemakers' shops, each with its sign conspicuously displayed; and there are tailors' shops etc. in even greater number, one would suppose, than the wants of the community would require.

There are also schools in successful operation which are attended by the whole juvenile population. The teachers are all New England women who bring intelligence and a spirit of the truest devotion to the work of qualifying these young children of the nation for the duties which await them in the future. The teachers uniformly testify that the children learn with quite as much readiness as those with whiter skins, [illegible] add that they pay even greater attention, as a rule, to their studies—many of them manifesting the utmost eagerness to learn. In music they are particularly apt, and their singing of [illegible] the simple melodies of the war is at once [illegible] and touching.

Many of the adults also flock to these [illegible] to pick up crumbs of that knowledge of which they have been deprived in the dreamy past. [illegible] are said to exhibit a most remarkable avidity to learn to read the Bible, which they seem to regard as a mine of treasures, which are only to be had for the digging; and their joy at being able to read and commit a single passage is [illegible] to afford a most delightful exhibition [illegible] urally religious character of this oppressed and outraged race.

FLOCKS OF CHILDREN.

A striking feature of the community which cannot fail to attract the attention of the visitor is the vast number of children of the tender ages from one to five or six years. Every [illegible] ing appeared to rejoice in a flock of at least a dozen, and about the door of some as many as ten or twelve round-faced, laughing-eyed boys and girls in aprons and bibs may be seen. [illegible] dresses of these youngsters are by no means uniform in style or material, being mainly made up apparently of the cast-off uniform of soldiers, [illegible] the clothing of adults who, as prosperity has grown upon them, have themselves assumed [illegible] and comely apparel. Some of the boys who have turned their first decade usually appear in a costume something like the following: A soldier's cap, or wanting the caput, a jacket of many colors, [illegible] with some military [illegible] or device, and pantaloons much too long, [illegible] one whole one leg of the Zouave pattern, the other of an army blue, with a stripe of black [illegible] along the seam. [illegible] the characteristic [illegible] striking color. [illegible] the wearers [illegible] of necessity.

THE W[illegible]

The women of the village [illegible] in appearance, and many of the [illegible] superior in intelligence of the poorer [illegible] the whites of the South. They take the [illegible] English in rendering a service to the [illegible] and polite almost to servility. No man [illegible] habitation of gratitude which [illegible] course of these people we shall [illegible] with white skins. Many of the families [illegible] employment [illegible] and nurses if they could be induced [illegible] but they have a wonderful [illegible] homes and we can [illegible] they are now gathered.

[illegible]

There are many venerable patriarchs in the village who may be seen [illegible] during the shadow of their [illegible] singing the [illegible] of the little ones whose [illegible] are never [illegible] as theirs have done, the dark rough ways of [illegible] Arlington [illegible] the heights [illegible] and women who [illegible] immemorial had been family servants [illegible]

INTERESTING ACCOUNT OF THE RICHMOND [illegible] NEWSPAPERS.—The Richmond paper [illegible] writing to the Editor [illegible]

The newspapers of a community [illegible] [illegible] The leading papers are the [illegible] Mr. [illegible] owned by Messrs. Walker & Lewellen [illegible] Mr. P. [illegible] Hughes [illegible] [illegible] very few now agree with it.

[illegible]

The W[illegible] has taken the ill-advised step of "turning Yankee," as the people call it here.

We get the following items from the Walla Walla Statesman:

Mr. [illegible] has returned to Lewiston [illegible] publication [illegible]

A gentleman who has been [illegible] a prospecting trip through the Blackfoot country [illegible] says: "I have just returned from a long trip to the Blackfoot country. You cannot say too much in favor of that country [illegible]"

Mr. M. Harriman will shortly commence the erection of a new Hotel on the old city jail lot at the upper end of Main street. The building will be 100 by 80 feet, two and a half stories high and, according to the plan, [illegible] elegant addition for this city.

The permanent population of the city is steadily increasing. [illegible] During the past fortnight we have heard of several families who have moved up here from California and Oregon, and there has been scarcely a day in that time that we have not heard persons making inquiries concerning houses to rent. This, together with the bustle and stir among the merchants of the city, the loading up and departure of trains for [illegible] the arrival and departure of the [illegible] Wallula and Lewiston [illegible] Walla Walla [illegible] to the [illegible] notwithstanding.

The tendency of a large city is to a constantly [illegible] rate of increase. Numbers attracted [illegible] at this moment more than a million of the inhabitants of [illegible] rural districts or the provincial towns. The [illegible] money received from the peasantry and from their lands to swell the plans of [illegible] and incredible expenditure of the English capital [illegible] street and parks of this mighty city was never [illegible] the great marts and cities of the past, at Antwerp, or Venice, or Rome, or [illegible] must have been a trifle in comparison. LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.
